Proxy Certificate

EMEC members may vote by proxy, within the following limitations:

1. Proxies must be completed in ink.
2. A member may only give his or her proxy to another qualified voting member from the same zone.
3. A fully completed proxy certificate must be given by the member directly to his or her proxy, without intermediaries.
4. No member may hold more than one proxy at any meeting.
5. Because a joint membership is only one membership, two joint co-members may only hold a total of one proxy.
6. Proxies must designate the specific meeting for which they are authorized.
7. Proxies expire after 60 days.
8. The arrival of a member at a meeting shall revoke a proxy he or she has given to another voting member. Providing the proxy vote has not already been cast before the member arrives, the member may vote in the election as if the proxy had never been given.

Corporate Member Voting Credential

Businesses, churches, municipalities, associations, and other organizations may be voting corporate members of the Cooperative. To qualify for membership, an organization must be a separate legal entity receiving electric service that is billed to the organization itself.

To vote, a corporate member must designate one person to cast a vote on its behalf. Once that person is chosen, an officer of the organization makes the designation official by completing a voting credential certificate, like the one below.

While a voting member of a zone may carry only one proxy to the meeting, he or she may carry more than one corporate voting credential certificate, as long as he or she has a bona fide relationship with each corporate member.

Like all other Co-op members, a corporate member may only cast one vote, regardless of the number of accounts in the organization's name.

“Which of us can vote?”

(Joint vs Single Memberships)

Who gets to vote when two people live at the same place? The Co-op’s bylaws permit any two adult cohabitants to become joint co-members of the Cooperative. Here’s how to tell if your membership is single or joint. You’ll need to look at the mailing address imprint on the back of this meeting notice.

A sample address imprint is shown below. Above the name on the imprint is an account number. Next to the account number is the “member type” code, which is either “S” or “J.”

- ✎ Is there an “S” next to the account number on your mailing imprint? If so, only the person named on the imprint can vote.
- ✎ Is there a “J” next to the account number? “J” indicates a joint membership, which means either co-member may vote, but not both of them.
- ✎ If there are two names on the label, does that automatically mean both people are members? Not automatically. If there are two names on the mailing imprint, but there is an “S” next to the account number, only the first person named on the label can vote.
